ADULT LITERACY - From Creating Joyful Learning Experience into active Citizenship

LITERACY

def. Conclusion from November 26, 2012

Reading ability understood as a reading and writing competence that allows to understand and critical evaluate the use of different forms of information. It includes a hand writing text, printed or electronic version. It covers basic, functional and multilevel reading ability.

According to recently presented research outcomes 75 millions of EU citizens lack in literacy skills. Also Council Conclusion states that improving the ability of reading is very important. This ability is the essential key to express the development of individual reflection by forming verbal speeches and creating critical thinking, empathy and also stimulating personal growth. It increases self confidence and gives a feeling of identity with full involvement in society based on knowledge that is described as digitalisation.

ADULT LITERACY because it is never too late to learn

TARGET GROUP

- Disadvantaged groups: adults with low literacy and numeracy level, migrants, unemployed people;
- Professionals on adult literacy and numeracy, staff and teachers/trainers in adult educational institutions.

WHY?

MAIN PROJECT AIMS

- to help provide adults - particularly from disadvantaged groups - with pathways to improving their knowledge and competencies by promoting adult literacy learning and social engagement, addressing local needs
- to improve and enrich teaching tools in adult education for trainers and teachers working with the target group.
